Four Jhānas

Insight Meditation South Bay www.imsb.org

Four Jhānas

Key points

- The four jhānas are a defining feature of Right Concentration in the Buddhist Tradition.
- Jhānas are states of deep meditative absorption in which attention is unified with a fixed meditation object, the mind is secluded from sensory engagements, and all unwholesome states have been abandoned.
- Each level of absorption is characterized by a particular cluster of intensifying factors.
- Besides the four jhānas, there are two other sets of states commonly related to the four jhānas:
  - 1. Access to Jhāna
    - At the threshold to jhāna the five hindrances have been abandoned and the five jhāna factors have arisen.
    - Access to jhāna and first jhāna share the same five basic factors, but are more refined and stable in absorption.
    - A meditator in access to jhāna may maintain awareness of changing sensory objects.
  - 2. Four immaterial jhānas are commonly listed after the four jhānas
    - 1. The base of infinite space
    - 2. The base of infinite consciousness
    - 3. The base of nothingness
    - 4. The base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception

More details and practical instructions are included in Focused And Fearless: A Meditator's Guide to States of Deep Joy, Calm, And Clarity, by Shaila Catherine, published by Wisdom Publications, 2008.

Jhānas	Factors abandoned	Factors acquired or intensified	Notes
The first jhāna	Five hindrances:  1. Sloth and torpor  2. Doubt  3. III will / aversion  4. Restlessness  5. Greed / sensual desire	Five Jhāna factors:  1. Applied thought  2. Sustained thought  3. Rapture  4. Happiness  5. One-pointedness of the mind	<ul> <li>Five hindrances are opposed to the five jhāna factors.</li> <li>Characterized by rapture and happiness born of seclusion</li> <li>Commentarial teachings and just a few suttas specifically list one-pointedness as a feature of first jhāna; many suttas omit explicit reference to the factor one-pointedness.</li> </ul>
The second jhāna	<ol> <li>Applied thought</li> <li>Sustained thought</li> </ol>	<ol> <li>Rapture</li> <li>Happiness</li> <li>One-pointedness of the mind</li> </ol>	<ul> <li>Disappearance of applied and sustained thought</li> <li>Characterized by delight and happiness born of concentration</li> </ul>
The third jhāna	Rapture	Subtle happiness     One-pointedness of the mind	<ul> <li>Rapture fades, revealing a quiet, subtle, and pervasive happiness.</li> <li>Characterized by the subtle enjoyment of a mind that is mindful and equanimous</li> </ul>
The fourth jhāna	Happiness	One-pointedness of the mind     Equanimity	<ul> <li>Happiness is replaced by equanimity.         The mind is profoundly stable, still, and equanimous.     </li> <li>Mindfulness is purified by equanimity.</li> </ul>